Fajar Yaskur¹, Ifahda Pratama Hapsari²^{1,2}Universitas Muhammadiyah Gresik, Indonesia*correspondence email : fajaryaskur.210901016@umg.ac.id

Abstract: This study aims to determine the existence of the sanctions of the sexual violence crime act called (TPKS) in various ways to provide preventive and repressive legal protection for victims of sexual violence. They are compiled using the normative method, which includes the study of laws and regulations, legal theories, opinions of experts, and other legal materials. Sexual harassment is an act that has a severe impact on victims, and the existence of the TPKS Law Number 12 of 2022 in Indonesia was formed as a legal umbrella effort and as an effort to renew punitive sanctions to follow up firmly on perpetrators of sexual harassment. The Criminal Code that has been amended and regulated in the Criminal Code Number 1 of 2023, which is explained in Chapter XV concerning criminal acts of decency, mainly regulated in articles 414 to 423 of the Criminal Code, has also not been able to provide complete legal protection for victims of sexual harassment. The Criminal Code also does not mention explicitly or explicitly the problem of sexual abuse. The result of this research is to provide explanation and legal protection for victims who are mentally disturbed due to the impact of sexual harassment and can provide punishment for perpetrators regardless of their status to create a deterrent effect for the perpetrators.

INTRODUCTION

Sexual harassment is an act that, from the past until now, has become a problem in the community; until now, sexual harassment cases have occurred everywhere and in various places where the victim is primarily a woman. Hence, sexual harassment is committed against a person without consent or intentionally to do so despite being initially unwanted and detrimental to the victim.¹ Sexual harassment can occur due to coercion ranging from physical and psychological by the perpetrator against the victim.² The existence of the existence related to sexual harassment is located in Act Number 12 of 2022 related to TPKS regulated in Article 4 point (1).³

Furthermore, the impact of sexual harassment on victims is physical and mental health impacts. It takes a very long time and gradual process for victims to heal from the trauma they have experienced. Another impact is that it affects the development of the victim's identity and social life for the victim.⁴ As a result of sexual harassment, many are not strong with the suffering experienced, so unpleasant problems occur for victims, including depression and suicide.⁵ Sexual harassment that often occurs against adult women is not only physical but also verbal and non-verbal. If the harassment is verbal, it is an act such as whistling with the opposite sex and throwing words that intersect with sexual lust (immoral) so that it makes the victim feel amused and uncomfortable.⁶ While non-verbal sexual harassment is seeing sexual acts by looking at their genitals, as well as friction carried out to other people. The form of sexual harassment is also physical harassment, namely, acts of sexual harassment committed by the perpetrator against the victim physically. This physical sexual harassment can be said to be severe and mild because it includes, for example, groping a woman's body with sexual categories, kissing, and hugging.⁷

Victims of sexual harassment are generally adult women, but in some cases, they are, come victims of sexual harassment. Most of those who do it are persons familiar with the victim, including close friends, relatives, lovers, teachers, religious leaders, and superiors.⁸ Victims of sexual harassment are predominantly adult women who should have legal protection from the state and from the community so that there is comfort for adult women and avoid sexual harassment against irresponsible perpetrators. The factors themselves are due to hormonal changes of the perpetrator, the development of technology, changing lifestyles, and sexual ignorance.⁹ Women from the past until now, according to the view of society, still have a shallow position. Therefore, the most common sexual harassment targeted is women.¹⁰ Therefore, it is essential to legally protect a woman who is a victim of sexual harassment by using preventative and repressive legal protections in handling the case. The regulation of the perpetrators of sexual harassment is stipulated in Law Number 1 of 2023 on the new KUHP in Chapter XV on criminal acts of decency. However, in the Criminal Code Number 1 of 2023, several articles cannot provide prevention or protection to victims of sexual harassment, and their existence is also doubtful. In addition to using these regulations, there are also regulations governing the criminal of sexual harassment, including Act Number 12 of 2022 regarding TPKS, which explains all penalties for those who commit criminal acts of non-physical and physical harassment.

The study conducted by researcher is "The Existence of Sexual Violence Crime in Indonesia." Based on some previous studies such as from Desi Puspita Sari et al. study entitled Desi Puspita Sari et al., "Perlindungan Hukum Bagi Korban Pelecehan Seksual Menurut Perspektif Undang-Undang Nomor 12 Tahun 2022 Tentang TPKS". The study focuses more on Law Number 12 of 2022 related to TPKS and how to protect victims in a preventive way. The characteristics of this study and Desi Puspita Sari's et al. that the studies regulate the law not only refers to Act Number 12 of 2022 related to TPKS but also Act Number 1 of 2023 related to the new KUHP (Criminal Code), this study not only mentions 10 points in the TPKS law but also explains in detail the solution important point in the TPKS law. The similarity is that it discusses legally protecting victims who experience sexual harassment using the legal basis of the TPKS Law.¹¹

By comparing previous studies, researcher understand that the legal protection for victims of sexual harassment in Indonesia well and improvements are still needed to improve legal protection. Researcher see many victims of sexual harassment cases. Thus this study provides an understanding of preventive and repressive legal protection and applicable laws. Therefore the researcher uses the title "Existence of Sexual Violence Crime in Indonesia".

METHOD

The method in this study is to use normative legal research methods or legal research sourced from literature, namely research by examining various applicable laws and regulations, legal theories, opinions of experts, and legal bases related to the issues to be discussed so that they know the procedures for resolving the law and are used to answer legal issues systematically which are appropriate in this study. The researcher uses this method to understand the legal issues being studied in a problem currently busy in the community and aims to provide an understanding of the efforts to resolve it with the applicable regulations.

DISCUSSION

Legal Protection for Victims of Sexual Harassment

The existence of legal protection against the TPKS Law in providing legal protection lies in its focus on law in dealing with victims (victim trust) and in favor of the victim's perspective. According to Article 3 of the TPKS Act, namely:¹² Abandon all acts of sexual assault; Serve, protect, or heal the victims; Carrying out the application of the law and the process of restoring the perpetrator; Building an environment where there is no sexual assault; Guaranteed the non-repetition of sexual assault. For example, a case of sexual violence recently occurred by the caregiver of an Islamic boarding school located in Dukun Subdistrict, Gresik Regency. Before entering the boarding school, the victim had experienced sexual abuse and became pregnant in 2018. Some time ago, the victim had already been one of the victims of sexual abuse; because of this incident, the victim was taken by the Gresik Regency KBPPA Office, which was eventually put into an Islamic Boarding School, to be able to recover from the previous incident. The purpose of the inclusion in the Islamic Boarding School was to be able to heal mentally from the trauma. However, it was unfortunate that the victim still became one of the heinous treatment by the caretaker of her Islamic boarding school, namely, molesting her students. Often, as in the case of sexual harassment, it is important to deepen the sentence for the offender and not protect the interests of the offender.¹³

In general, in Indonesia, in the Criminal Code, legal protections for victims of sexual harassment can be carried out in various ways, in balance with the needs of victims who experience the impact of sexual abuse. For example, if the victim suffers a psychological loss, then the compensation that must be given to the victim is not in the form of money because it is inadequate if there is no mental healing action for the victim psychologically.¹⁴ Legal protection measures that the government must take against adult women who experience criminal acts of sexual harassment, include: preventative legal protection efforts and repressive legal defense efforts.¹⁵

According to Philipus M. Hadjon (1987), the legal protections of society are categorized into two types: preventative and repressive. Preventative legal protection is aimed at objecting to or preventing before a problem occurs. Preventative legal protection makes the government vigilant in acting and makes discretionary decisions, while repressive legal protection is aimed at resolving an event or a problem in its enforcement in the judiciary.¹⁶

Legal protection following the theory of Philipus M. Hadjon should be used and applied to the interests of Indonesian citizens and unite the thoughts of Pancasila and the principles of the legal protection of Western people. The theory is worth applying in Indonesia so that the application of law in Indonesia does not come out of Pancasila which is used as a thought or view and the basis of the Indonesian state.¹⁷ preventative legal protection carried out for the security and order of the entire community must be done, namely: approach, educate, strengthen regulations, and cooperate with other parties;¹⁸ Teach and educate the community about sexual matters and teach the consequences of sexual harassment.¹⁹ The government, in protecting victims, must have a regulatory role, a facilitator role, and an implementing role.²⁰

In addition to protecting the law with preventive measures carried out by the government officials who enforce the law, they also carry out repressive legal protection to teach lessons to perpetrators who commit sexual harassment so that the perpetrators do not dare to do the same thing again with all the people who will become victims. Regarding efforts using repressive methods, the apparatus of enforcing punishment against the perpetrator must conduct an investigation and then continue to investigate the perpetrator to the Court. Repressive efforts are carried out by strictly processing and sanctions given to the perpetrators following the regulations.²¹ This repressive legal protection effort by law enforcement officials, in addition to following up from the beginning of the reporting process from the victim to the court, law enforcement officials also monitors the condition of victims who experience criminal acts of sexual harassment until their condition is normal again. In repressive law enforcement, among others, namely provide legal protection for victims and witnesses who experience criminal acts of sexual harassment against adult women; law enforcement officials must be quick in handling the completion of sexual harassment cases committed by perpetrators to adult women and provide facilities for victims in terms of psychology so that victims can eliminate depression or severe trauma suffered for victims of sexual harassment;²² provide compensation and leniency and inform the judge of the progress of the decision.²³

People can see in the following legal protection efforts for victims of sexual harassment from preventive efforts that must be carried out by the government, namely: socializing and educating about sexual harassment is most important so that people can be more careful and avoid any actions that can harm others; creating a joint group or task force in maintaining a safe and comfortable environment from sexual harassment; patrols are conducted in areas that may be considered to have a very high risk of sexual abuse; the opening of a swift service for the reporting of victims who are subjected to sexual harassment.²⁴

The TKPS Law complements the prevailing rules for providing legal protection for victims.²⁵ Repressive legal protection efforts according to Law Number 12 of 2022 on TPKS, namely as follows:²⁶ Article 28 explain that People who accompany victims and witnesses are given legal protection during the examination process; then Article 30 paragraph (1): victims of sexual harassment will receive compensation and healing; while Articles 42 to 47 describe protection for victims who experience sexual harassment or sexual violence.

Articles 42 through 47 read as follows: Article 42 paragraph (1): a process of 1x24 (one time twenty-four) hours starting at the time of receipt of information of criminal acts of sexual harassment, the police immediately take measures to protect the victim legally temporarily; Article 43 paragraph (1): The process is 1x24 (one time two four) hours from the

The Existence of Sanctions in Law Number 12 of 2022 on the Crime of Sexual Violence

The Act of sexual harassment is a grave crime, regulated by the old Criminal Code (KUHP), which explains itself under Book II Section XIV, the crime of decency morality. Actors of sexual assault are charged with articles of decency as regulated under Article 281 of the KUHP up to Article 296 of the KUHP,²⁷ or by using Law Number 1 of 2023 regarding the new KUHP which is still valid for the next 3 years after the enactment of the Law, which is contained in Chapter XV concerning criminal acts of decency stipulated in Articles 414 to 423. Similarly, Law Number 12 of 2022 regarding TPKS is a rule to be more apparent in resolving a crime of sexual harassment.

The Criminal Code (KUHP), which is generally called Law Number 1 of 2023, does not yet have the capability or ability to regulate the Act of sexual harassment; thus, the rules of Law Number 12 of 2022 concerning TPKS make an appropriate rule in regulating the crime of sexual harassment.²⁸ Article 1 point (1) mentions: that the Act of sexual abuse is an action which contains part of the criminal offense, based on the rules in the present Act and other acts of sexual abuse in accordance with the rules in the Act to the extent specified in the present Act.

Based on this article, the material act in the TPKS Law is the renewal of the handling cases of sexual abuse criminal acts. As for Law Number 12 of 2022 related to TPKS, it has its own ten important points, including: 1) All acts of sexual abuse are included in sexual assault. How to prevent acts of sexual harassment non-physically, the victim himself must maintain a way of dressing so as not to trigger other people to take actions that harass the victim or report the perpetrator to the authorities; 2) In protecting protecting victims of revenge porn, the solution to solving problems for the perpetrator is to threaten the perpetrator with imprisonment, confinement, or fines.²⁹ By saving evidence, then blocking the perpetrator and reporting the perpetrator to the authorities; 3) Coercion of marriage, the solution in the coercion of marriage carried out by the perpetrator against the victim, the regulation in question is stipulated in Article 10 point (1), which states that if the perpetrator is against the Law by forcing marriage with him or with another person, then the perpetrator will be subject to imprisonment for 9 years and/or an additional fee of 200 (two hundred million rupiah); 4) Coercion of marriage, the solution in the coercion of marriage carried out by the perpetrator against the victim, the regulation in question is stipulated in Article 10 point (1) states that if the perpetrator is against the law by forcing marriage with him or with another person, then the perpetrator will be subject to imprisonment for 9 years and / or an additional fee of 200 (two hundred million rupiah); 5) The perpetrator is not only punished and fined, but apart from these penalties, he also receives a more severe consequence, including losing custody of his child because it is revoked; his identity is made publicly known to the public, replacing the losses suffered by the victim and returning all profits obtained; 6) A corporation that commits an act of TPKS may be subject to criminal penalties and fines. The perpetrator will be subject to an additional sanction such as forfeiture of profits obtained from the TPKS, announcement of the court decision, full or partial suspension of the corporation's activities, or dissolution of the corporation³⁰; 7) The explanation of the witness/victim and one piece of evidence can be fulfilled in determining the defendant, meaning that it can be used as a determinant for the perpetrator of TPKS to become a defendant; 8) Victims have the freedom to obtain restitution and healing services, but if the offender is not able to pay or compensate for a loss, then the offender can be imprisoned instead for a year; 9) Victims of TPKS have the right to assistance. In this case, the victim or anyone who witnesses a TPKS can report the perpetrator to the police; 10) There is no restorative justice. The settlement of the TPKS case cannot be done with restorative justice because it is to avoid efforts to resolve it using money.

All of the points above are ways to provide repressive legal protections for victims of the actions of the perpetrators who commit TPKS and provide an additional criminal sanction against the perpetrators so that there is a deterrent effect for perpetrators who have committed TPKS. The existence of the TPKS Law is used to overcome a criminal act of sexual harassment so that it can complement the rule of law that was still unable to provide complete legal protection or that is still imperfect in the application of law and its enforcement. Legal arrangements for victims of sexual abuse regulated in the Law of the Number 1 Year 2023 regarding the new KUHP, which is the problem related to the author's discussion, is described according to Article 423 of Law Number 1 of 2023 which states that the articles that regulate to ensnare the actions of perpetrators who commit sexual harassment or sexual violence are regulated in Articles 414 to Article 422. The article explains how criminal sanctions for perpetrators, whether starting from officials, employees, doctors, teachers, institutions, or other government institutions.³¹

Meanwhile, the regulation of sexual assault under Law Number 12, the Year 2022 TPKS regulates both physical and sexual abuse and electronic-based sexual harassment to protect victims and provide criminal penalties for perpetrators who commit these acts. In the TPKS Law, which regulates criminal acts of sexual assault or sexual harassment, the author uses Articles 6 to 29. The articles explain the legal protection, starting from the victim himself, as well as from the companions and witnesses. In addition, it also provides penalties for perpetrators if they intentionally commit criminal sexual abuse for officials, teachers, superiors with subordinates, and parents who commit sexual abuse against their children.

Regarding legal arrangements in proving the crime of sexual assault, it is stipulated under Articles 184 of the Criminal Procedure Code (KUHP) concerning legally valid evidence, among others: witness explanations, expert explanations, letters, indications, and testimony of the accused. As for sexual abuse or rape, it can be proven using a Visum from an expert statement which regulates Article 187 letter c of the KUHP, which explains the letter from an expert explanation which contains the views or explanations of a professional expert in a particular field.³²

The evidentiary arrangements according to legal provisions in criminal acts such as sexual assault in Act Number 12 the Year 2022 regarding TPKS are stipulated in Article 24 point (1), which explains that evidence following the law, among others are evidence as referred to in the KUHP; electronic information evidence; evidence used in committing sexual harassment such as objects or goods. Article 24, paragraph (2) also explains that evidence in conformity with the rules and provision is in the form of witness testimony and the results of the victim examination conducted during the investigation. The TPKS Law also includes evidence in the form of letters proving the criminal act of sexual assault as stipulated in Article 24 point (3), such as letters from psychologists, psychiatrists, or mental doctors; medical history records; examinations resulting from forensics; and examinations resulting from bank accounts.

Article 6 through Article 29 of Law Number 12 of 2022 related to TPKS above in providing sanctions to the perpetrators, namely:³³ sanctions for physical, sexual assault are regulated in Article 6 letter a regulates the perpetrator's act of touching the victim's body

CONCLUSION

It can be concluded that the problems that are often encountered and many victims of the criminal act of sexual assault against women often occur in Indonesia; therefore, providing an important service starts from protecting victims both before the event occurs and after the event occurs, which can be seen in Article 3 of the TPKS Law. As for legal protection, by preventing an act, the government agencies provide education or regular socialization to all citizens, especially women who are vulnerable to becoming victims, with how to prevent criminal acts of sexual harassment so that citizens know how acts can be categorized as acts of sexual harassment. Providing penalties for perpetrators who commit criminal acts of sexual harassment can be seen in Act Number. 1 Year 2023, which generally replaces the old KUHP and can also use the existence of Law Number 12 of 2022 related to TPKS to provide criminal sanctions against irresponsible perpetrators by committing criminal acts of sexual harassment to provide repressive legal protection to the victim and the perpetrator are punished following applicable regulations to have a deterrent effect on their actions that make many people suffer losses. Therefore, the government must provide the best service and legal protection for victims, starting from educating the public regarding what should be avoided from actions that cause sexual harassment committed by others and making more leverage in legal protection and compliance with applicable legal arrangements. Thus, cases of sexual harassment will be minimized as victims, and the perpetrators will also be minimized due to the deterrent effect of the punishment that has been given regardless of the status or position of the perpetrator.
